The International Conference on Information Society (i-Society 2006)
<http://www.i-society.org>

The International Conference on Information Society (i-Society 2006) is a global knowledge-enriched collaborative effort that has its roots from both academia and industry. The conference covers a wide spectrum of topics that relate to information society, which includes technical and non-technical research areas.

The mission of i-Society 2006 conference is to provide opportunities for collaboration of professionals and researchers to share existing and generate new knowledge in the field of information society.

The conference encapsulates the concept of interdisciplinary science that studies the societal and technological dimensions of knowledge evolution in digital society. The i-Society bridges the gap between academia and industry with regards to research collaboration and awareness of current development in secure information management in the digital society. Proposals for special sessions are invited from both industry and academia. Proposals should include:

- Title of the special session
- Brief description of your special session (1 paragraph)
- Brief biography of special session organiser (1 paragraph)
- Preferred email address for receiving paper submissions

The special session organiser may use the i-Society 2006 website to call for paper submissions. When a proposal is accepted, the special session organiser will be informed of the designated web-link. The organiser's name will appear in the conference program as 'Special session organiser'. Additionally, each Special Session Organiser will receive an honorarium. Papers submitted to the special session must be received by 1 May 2006. A minimum of five papers must be registered and registration fee must be paid by June 2006 in order for this session to be included in the conference program.

If you have further questions regarding special sessions or if you will like to organise a special session, please submit a proposal via email to: info@i-society.org

Special session submissions

Session paper submission

- A Special session must include a minimum of 5 papers.
- All papers for the special session will be submitted directly to the organiser. No special session papers are to be submitted through the i-Society 2006 website.

Session paper review and selection

The special session organiser will write his/her call for paper and responsible for following:

- Session paper review (each paper should be reviewed by at least two independent reviewers)
- Final selection of papers for the session;
- Notification of paper acceptance/rejection and sending review comments to authors;
- Providing the list of accepted papers to the i-Society by 20 May 2006. The i-Society 2006 will then email official invitation letters and registration information to the authors.

Author(s) of accepted papers for the special session are required to register and provide full payment before the conference registration deadline (15 June 2006).

All final papers must be received by the conference final submission deadline and must adhere to the i-society 2006 final paper formatting requirements.

The special session organiser will act as chair of the special session at the conference.
